British Bombs Strike In New Fury at Enemy

Germans and Italians Admit Damage By RAF Raiders on War Bases; Daylight Attacks on London Continued at Slackened Pace By Nazis.

(By United Press)

British bombers blasted with mounting fury at German and Italian war bases from Europe to Africa today to offset steady Nazi air raids on the British Isles and Axis hints that Spain might soon enter the conflict.

Daylight raids on London and other targets in southeastern England continued at a slackened pace following a night in which bombing of 35 districts in the London area was carried out so sporadically that the harassed population got a chance to sleep for the first time in two weeks.

But British bomber pilots got little rest. Throughout much of the night they showered high explosives on German "invasion bases across the calm but foggy English channel and blasted Nazi airports, harbors and communications lines as far as western Germany in one of their most powerful counter-blows of the war.

Dispatches from Berlin admitted for the first time that steady, powerful British raids had been made for weeks on the French side of the English channel where the Germans have been reported massing boats and men at Calais, Dunkirk, Ostend and other ports for a possible invasion of Britain.

The raids have been more intense in recent days, German reports said, but the high command asserted that little damage had been done to military objectives by British bombers that flew over western Germany and were turned back from Berlin at Hamburg.

German attacks on Britain were described by the Nazis as successful in smashing—with the aid of fog-piercing apparatus—at British industrial and communications objectives, especially railroad centers in the London area which are vital to British defense against an invasion attempt.

In Africa, the Italians admitted that British planes which have been bombing Fascist concentrations in the Sidi Barrani area had again attacked the big Libyan port of Benghazi but said that Italian pilots had "intensely" replied by bombing railroads, store houses and defenses around Marsa Matruh. The British base at Aden also was again reported attacked and British convoys were bombed in the Red Sea.

The African campaign and the role of Spain in the war appeared to have been of greatest importance in the discussions of Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop with Italian Premier Benito Mussolini at Rome.

The Fascist press, led by the newspaper Il Telegrafo of Foreign

BASE OFFERED

U. S. Given Use of Singapore Naval Facilities.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Great Britain has offered the United States navy the use and facilities of the great Singapore naval base, authoritative sources said today.

Britain, it was understood, is anxious to have the American fleet use Singapore as a buffer against Japanese pressure while her energies are concentrated in the battle against Germany.

There were indications that the United States is considering the offer seriously, weighing the effect such a move might have on Japan.

So far the conversations of British Ambassador Lord Lothian and Australian Minister Richard Casey with Secretary of State Cordell Hull and others, have been exploratory only.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Ohio's Sen. Robert A. Taft voted with 11 other Republicans against a conference report increasing borrowing power of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. by $1,500,000,000, which the senate accepted last night. Sen Vic Donahey, Ohio Democrat, did not vote.

WILLKIE ENTERS SAN FRANCISCO

Big Parade Greets Candidate As He Prepares to Give Major Address.

(By International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—Wendell Willkie today paid his third visit to San Francisco. His first was as a farm worker enroute from the San Joaquin valley, his second as president of the giant Commonwealth & Southern corporation and his current visit as Republican candidate for president of the United States.

San Francisco, which paid no attention to the arival of just one more itinerant farm laborer 30 years ago, welcomed the presidential candidate today with screaming police sirens, a parade miles long, a side trip to the San Francisco fair and an expected capacity house at the civic auditorium where he speaks tonight.

Enroute to San Francisco, Willkie encountered the first hostile audiences he had found in California. Southern California and the Los Angeles area gave him an enthusiastic reception, but as he headed north toward San Francisco there were hecklers in his trainside audiences and some who booed and jeerd.

Mostly they appeared to be in the juvenile non-voting class and their uncomplimentary attention did not appear to disturb the candidate, although he did comment at one stop that if issues were to be settled by catcalls then democracy was indeed in danger.

San Francisco scheduled a pa-

Bids on Elevator For Courthouse Too High By $933

Richland county commissioners said today they probably will have to ask for new bids on the installation of an elevator at the courthouse and the construction of a county dog pound, since bids opened yesterday on the two projects were all higher than architects' estimates.

Combined bids for the elevator installation and electrical work totaled $13,933, or $933 above the estimate. Eight bids were received on the elevator mechanism with the lowest, for $8,482, submitted by the Westinghouse Elevator company, a division of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

J. W. Ness, Mansfield contractor, was low bidder on the installation at $5,973. Two other bids were submitted, ranging up to $11,311. The Richland Electric company, Mansfield, was the only bidder on the electrical work. It offered to do the job for $378.

The lone bidder on the dog pound was Simon Small and Son, Mansfield, who agreed to build the structure for $2,019. The estimate was $1,500.

ARM TORN OFF CRASH VICTIM NEAR GILEAD

Three Hurt In Accident On Route 42; Pedestrian Hit Near Fairground.

MOTORISTS IN COURT

Parade of Autoists Appear In Mansfield, Justice Courts On Charges.

Automobile accidents in the Richland county area today resulted in injuries to four persons, one of them seriously hurt, when an automobile struck a truck near Mt. Gilead and a pedestrian was struck down on Route 39, near the Fairground.

All were treated in the Mansfield General hospital this morning.

Most critically injured was Frank Kosiba, 26, of Cleveland, who lost an arm in the accident near Mt. Gilead on Route 42. It was reported that Kosiba was riding with his arm protruding from the automobile window, when the machine and the truck collided.

Riding in the same car with Kosiba were Gus Stenstrom, 35, and his wife, Marjorie, 39, both of Cleveland, in the hospital with severe lacerations and contusions.

Details of the accident and name of the truck driver were not available at noon today.

James Nungesser, Shelby, was also treated in General hospital this morning for cuts and bruises, after being struck down while walking along the side of the road on Route 39.

The car which struck Nungesser was driven by Maurice Godfrey, 127 North Benton street. Nungesser was thrown off the road when hit, highway patrolmen said.

Nungesser was released from the hospital this morning after being treated.

In another accident early this morning an automobile driven by Harold H. Hoover, 40, Lisbon, struck a cow owned by Clyde King, a farmer near Nova, as the cow crossed the road in front of his automobile.

Highway patrolmen said today

FALL ARRIVING

First Day Will Be Cooler But It'll Still Be Warm.

What with Mother Nature getting her season all mixed up for the past year, you can expect an unusually warm "fall opening" tomorrow when autumn is officially ushered in.

Generally fair and somewhat cooler weather is forecast for this section of the state for tonight and tomorrow. Mansfield has been fortunate in the September "heat wave" for the temperature has not yet reached 90 as it has in many places.

Yesterday it was 94 degrees in Columbus and Cincinnati and 91 in Cleveland. Weathermen said an all-time high for September is in prospect. Fall comes in officially at 11:46 p. m. tomorrow.

Yesterday's high point on the thermometer was 88, with 53 the lowest during the night. At noon today it was 86 and indications were that it would rise slightly during the afternoon.

TIAJUANA, Lower Calif., Mex. (AP)—Fire early today razed the federal postoffice and three business buildings in this sleepy resort city, but firemen believed they were bringing it under control shortly before dawn.

Loss was unestimated, but was reported to include all court and marriage records. Many Americans have been married here to escape California's three-day law.

Industrial Workers Refused Blanket Deferment In Draft

WASHINGTON — (UP) — No blanket deferment will be given workers in industry regardless of the essential part that industry may play in national defense work, selective service officials said today.

Inquiries about conscription indicate that industrial deferment is one of the most discussed questions as registration day approaches and regulations are being completed.

Mindful of the furore during the World war over many husky youths finding refuge in shipyards and other essential plants, officials hope to avoid a similar situation this time.

Every registrant who is called before a local board for possible induction into the army will have to explain why he is essential to the operations of the industry itself.

Deferment this time will be based on "how important are you to your industry?" and "how soon can you be replaced?"

The decision on this, as on most other controversial points, will rest with the local draft board.

Details of the benefits to be extended conscripts—which congress has ruled must be the same as those extended enlisted men generally—are being worked out by various agencies. Conscripts will receive the same pay, annual leave and specialists ratings. Those

SIX KILLED

Two Automobiles Crash In Head-on Collision.

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa. —(AP)— Six young men were killed early today in the head-on collision of two automobiles near this western Pennsylvania town 20 miles north of Pittsburgh.

Four of the victims died instantly and the others an hour later.

A. J. Kabazie, a witness, told state motor police the crash occurred when one of the drivers pulled out of line.

The victims were, Louis Rush, 24, Springdale, Pa., Arthur Thomas and Van F. Nolker, Curtisville, Pa.; Norman Baughman, Braidsford, Pa., and Dominic Patera, 17, and Gus Christos, 22, New Kensington.

Man, 72, Hurt In Melee at City Prison

Two Other Prisoners to Face Grand Jury Quiz In Beating.

A melee in the "bullpen" at city jail early this morning during which a 72-year-old man was beaten resulted in the transfer of two prisoners to the Richland county jail to await grand jury action.

Held under $5,000 bonds are John R. Brady, whose address was not given, and Crawford Hynds, 44 Maple place. Brady is charged with assault with intent to kill and Hynds with aiding and abetting in an assault with intent to kill.

Arraigned before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court today, both pleaded inocent. The charges were filed by Clark DeWeese, 72, of 179 North Main street.

Officers said the fight broke out in the jail cell at about 2 a. m. Patrolman Gordon Drury, third shift deskman, heard the disturbance from the radio room and rushed to the jail.

Drury reported to Police Chief Meade K. Bates who was called to headquarters that he found Brady and Hynds beating DeWeese. They had been locked up about 11:30 p. m. on charge of intoxication.

DeWeese, bleeding about the head was taken immediately to General hospital. Attendants said he suffered an eye injury. Brady and Hynds were placed in separate cells after being questioned by Bates. DeWeese, also serving a sentence for intoxication, was removed to a separate cell. He had been committed Thursday.

Bates said there were several other prisoners in the "bullpen" at the time but that they were unable to stop the pair from attacking the aged man. Several suffered torn clothing and bruises in the attempt.

Although it was not definitely established, officers said they believed that the fight started when DeWeese complained about the noise the pair was making.

NEW MOLESTER SUSPECT HELD

Sheriff Arrests Man, 44, In Case Involving Girl, 10; Quizzed In Other Cases.

Arrested at his home in South Boulevards yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriffs Glenn Freeman and J. R. Hetler, a 44-year-old man, accused of molesting a 10-year-old neighbor girl, was held in the county jail today.

Prosecutor G. W. Marriott and Sheriff E. P. Long were to question the accused molester today, and the filing of a charge against him was withheld pending outcome of their investigation. Meanwhile, the child was to be examined by a physician to determine whether she had been harmed.

The man was arrested after the girl's grandparents, with whom she lived, said he had come to their home a number of times and allegedly had attempted to molest the girl.

Authorities immediately questioned the man about other child molesting cases in the city during recent months, but he denied that he had been involved in any of them.

He denied harming the 10-year-old girl, but admitted he had been in her grandparents' home and had seen the child there a number of times, officers said. The accused molester is the father of a 11-year-old son.

Marriott said he wanted to investigate "another angle to the case" before filing a charge or indicating what it will be.

FAMILY MEETS DEMANDS MADE BY ABDUCTOR

3-Year-Old Marc De Tristan Son of Wealthy Count, Taken From Nurse.

FBI AGENTS WITHDRAW

Beak-Nosed Man Loses Hat In Fight Over Child; Leaves 600-Word Directions.

(By Associated Press)

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif.—The safety of kidnaped Marc De Tristan, jr., was placed ahead of all other considerations today as the 3-year-old boy's wealthy family uncompromisingly declared its readiness to meet the beak-nosed abductor's $100,000 ransom demand.

FBI agents and local police withdrew from the pretentious De Tristan home in this exclusive little peninsular community, tucked away in the coastal hills 20 miles south of San Francisco, and gave the family a free hand in establishing contact with the dark-complexioned kidnaper.

In a 600-word, typewritten note dropped where the boy was seized just before noon yesterday, the De Tristans were directed to get in touch with the kidnaper through an advertisement inserted in the advertising section of a San Francisco paper. This was done.

Little Marc, the son of Count and Countess Marc De Tristan and step-grandson of Louis Shattuck Cates, president of the vast Phelps Dodge corporation, was out for an airing in his go-cart, accompanied by his nurse, when the kidnaper drove up in a car and carried him away. The man threatened the nurse with a pistol.

The middle-aged nurse, Mary Foley, was knocked to the ground and painfully bruised when she tried to save the boy. In her futile struggle she knocked off the man's gray hat. It is expected to be a valuable clew.

The chubby, curly-haired lad was speeded away in a dark sedan, pursued ineffectively for some distance by Albert Williams, a colored chauffeur who drove up just as the kidnaper fled.

The kidnaper was described by Miss Foley as a husky, dark-skinned man with a prominent hook nose, about 48 or 50 years old.

She and the boy were nearly half a mile from the De Tristan home when the man accosted her and asked "Is this the De Tristan child?"

Taken aback by the question, she said "Why, yes."

The man pulled a pistol, grabbed the child and started for his car waiting at the curb.

Marc, jr., is fair of complexion,

Kidnapers Take 93 to 1 Chance Of Punishment

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The kidnaper, or kidnapers, of 3-year-old Marc De Tristan took a 93 to 1 chance of ending up in prison—or worse.

Since passage of the "Lindbergh" law in 1932, the federal bureau of investigation has probed 187 kidnapings and solved 185. The unsolved cases are those of Charles Mattson, 10, kidnaped at Tacoma, Wash., December 27, 1936, and Peter Levine, 12, New Rochelle, N. Y., seized February 21, 1938. Both boys were slain.

The FBI declined to comment immediately on reports of the De Tristan kidnaping in Hillsborough, Calif., yesterday, but there was no doubt that the G-men were watching developments closely.

In the 185 solved kidnapings, the G-men have gained 367 convictions in which the courts have imposed 12 death sentences; 42 life sentences, 3,952 years in prison; 72 years suspended, 108 years probation, and $34,270 in fines. Only 24 federal kidnap defendants have been acquitted.

HIT OIL PLANTS

British Fliers Claim Damage To German Supply.

LONDON—(AP)—The RAF has "visited and bombed" 90 per cent of Germany's synthetic oil plants and 80 per cent of her regular oil refineries, Hugh Dalton, minister of economic warfare, declared today in a speech at Spennymoor, near Durham.

These targets have been heavily hit, even though production still continues at a reduced rate," he said.

Dalton added that German air raids "only are increasing our will to fight on until a decisive victory is won" and that the RAF is "destroying Hitler's power to wage war."

Wait Reports From 3 Counties on Ohio Red Petitions

COMMUNISTS TO LEARN OF DECISION SOON

Names of 3,000 of 35,000 Signers Removed; 24,129 Needed to Qualify.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Reports of election boards in populous Cuyahoga, Mahoning and Trumbull counties may determine today whether Communist party petitions bear enough valid signatures to qualify a slate of candidates for the Ohio ballot.

Approximately 3,000 of the original 35,000 signatures were stricken off the petitions at the request of signers who assertted that contents of the petitions were misrepresented by circulators.

The law requires 24,129 valid signatures.

A Franklin county grand jury investigating the misrepresentation complaints in Columbus was in recess until Monday.

Robert Minor, chairman of the Communist party's national campaign, charged at Canton that invalidation of Gus Hall as the party's candidate for Mahoning county commissioner was an "illegal, shoddy subterfuge."

Hall's name was ruled off the ballot because his former name was not listed.

Minor declared that Hall's name was changed legally from Arvo Hallberg in 1938.

Speaking in behalf of Earl Browder and James W. Ford, the party's candidates for president and vice president, respectively, Minor asserted that President Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, were "American imitators of Hitler."

NINE REMOVED HERE

In Richland county, nine of the 58 signatures on two Communist petitions were declared illegal by the board of elections because of non-registration of the signers.

Earlier, 12 of the signers asked that their names be removed because the petitions were allegedly misrepresented to them by the circulators. Most of the 12 who complained said they were told the petitions were for more old age pensions and a reduction in taxes.

Prosecutor G. W. Marriott started an investigation of the charges of fraud in circulation of the petitions, but so far he has filed no charges.

Richland County Red Cross Again Receives Honor

Richland County Red Cross chapter has again been honored by being cited by national headquarters as one of the model chapters in the nation, according to Everett Dix, district supervisor.

Dix was advised that national headquarters will send Paul Harvey, assistant national Roll Call chairman, to Mansfield next Thursday to learn first hand how the Richland county chapter "does it." He will study the Roll Call plans here and the chapter's county-wide set up, which will serve as a model for other chapters.

The chapter has been one of the outstanding ones in the nation in its Roll Call for a number of years and it is the No. 1 chapter in the state for its per capita memberships.

Party Circles Retained on Ohio Ballots

Up and Down THE STREET

An elegant collie that slipped its collar several days ago and got away from a bell hop who had the animal out for a walk will be going back to Chicago with its owner in the next few days. The owner had gone on to Chicago after stopping in Mansfield, and had asked police to search for the animal. Yesterday Patrolman Russell Miles and George Yoakum were called to Parkwood boulevard and captured the dog after chasing it about 12 blocks in a police cruiser. The officers didn't even have to get out of the car, it was so tired from running that it hopped up in the rear seat at their call.

Charles Siegenthaler was one of the "robber barons" for a few hours last night at the University club's Monte Carlo party at Westbrook Country club. Staked to a bank roll of stage money with which to start his gambling career, Siegenthaler got reckless at the dice table and at the end of an hour had $50,000 in bills stacked in front of him. Had just as much fun as though it were real money —and not half the strain on the heart.

While some of the younger city officials who played in the softball games at the city employes' picnic Thursday were limping about with sore muscles yesterday, 72-year-old Councilman C. N. Schultz had enough zip left to go to another picnic last night. "Those ball games were just a good workout for me, and I never felt better," the veteran councilman commented. Playing first base for the council team, he started a rally that beat the police team, 5 to 4.

Postmaster H. E. Homberger and Assistant Postmaster W. T. Houston were laughing today over the antics of an old man who gets fuel for his pipe by picking up cigar butts off the sidewalk. They claim that the man has a regular "beat" and that they can set their watches by the time he passes the postoffice in the morning. Just for fun the other day Houston bet someone that the man would pass his home, which is also on his "beat," at exactly three minutes to seven in the evening. Before the man was scheduled to arrive Houston laid a decoy—a partly-smoked cigar—on the sidewalk. Sure enough, at the appointed time the man arrived and pocketed his prize.

IMPROVE CAMP WATER SYSTEM

Health Precautions Taken for Ohio Guardsmen In Mississippi.

(By Associated Press)

HATTIESBURG ,Miss — Mississippi national guard officers asserted today that new water systems would be installed at Camp Shelby, now being prepared for 45,000 guardsmen from Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky.

Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio said yesterday that he would ask Adj. Gen. Gilson D. Light to investigate health conditions at the camp following newspaper reports that the camp's sewer and water systems were 23 years old and of wooden construction.

Approximately 8,500 Ohio national guardsmen have been assigned to Camp Shelby, 12 miles south of here, for a year's training.

Col. Harry Dolton, former housing officer, said at Jackson, Miss., that only satisfactory portions of the old sewer system would be included in the one to be constructed.

Work already has begun on temporary kitchens, mess halls, and other facilities to serve until permanent buildings are completed about Dec. 1.

The camp, built on the site of a great pine forest, was used as a training base for 70,000 soldiers during the World war and has been used annually since 1934 for summer maneuvers.

FIND MURDER SUSPECT'S BODY IN PENNSYLVANIA RESERVOIR

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—(AP)—The body of Sylvester Dellear, 51, sought since yesterday in connection with the slaying of Miss Madeline Clark, 44-year-old Lenox choir singer, was found today in the same reservoir where her remains were uncovered.

Miss Clark's body was found floating in the reservoir yesterday —just a month prior to her scheduled marriage to another man.

State police broadcast a call for the arrest of Dellear, 'for questioning on a murder case' after Medical Examiner George S. Wickham pronounced the attractive paper mill clerk a victim of "murder." Her head bore three gashes.

Assistant District Attorney Harold R. Goewey said he had been informed that Miss Clark was escorted by Dellear when she left choir practice at St. Helene's chapel in nearby Lenox on Thursday night. Goewey described the escort as married and estranged from his wife.

A bloodstained automobile, identified by Police Lieutenant John F. Horrigan as belonging to Dellear, and a bloody hammer, were found on the edge of the reservoir.

Horrigan said Lane Fyler, 45, had told him that he and she had intended to marry next month. Horrigan quoted Fyler as saying he had asked her to "break the news gently to Dellear."

AID IN HUNT FOR MISSING GIRL

Police Asked to Help Search for Senior High Pupil.

Police today were asked to search for a 15-year-old girl who left home Thursday evening and has not returned.

Mrs. Evelyn Sarafis, 207 Coul street, told officers that her daughter, Fern, left home about 6 p. m. to go to the public library. She said the girl took with her $7 with which she was to have paid rent on their living quarters.

Mrs. Sarafis indicated that the girl may have run away from home. She said she called Senior high school and learned that her daughter had not attended school Thursday although she had come home at the regular time.

DEMOCRATS WIN STATE SUPREME COURT RULING

Contest of Re-Nomination of Rep. Kirwan Turned Down by Tribunal.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Ohio voters may register their preference for president and vice president by placing a cross mark within the circle provided for the political party of their choice on the ballot.

The Ohio supreme court, overruling Secretary of State George M. Neffner, ordered the circles printed on the ballot yesterday.

Because of recent separation of state and national ballots by the state legislature, Neffner had ordered circles placed above party columns on the state ballot only.

The court, acting at the request of Charles Sawyer, Democratic national committeeman, held that the ballot separation law "did not directly or by implication repeal the express provisions" of a statute requiring a circle at the head of party column ballots.

Sawyer had contended that the absence of circles on the presidential ballot would be "misleading."

The suit of Locke Miller of Youngstown contesting the renomination of Rep. Michael J. Kirwan, Democrat, in the 19th district was dismissed by the court.

Chief Justice Carl M. Weigandt said he could not substantiate Miller's accusation that Kirwan won the nomination through corrupt politics. The court also dismissed an affidavit accusing Joseph Rendinell, Youngstown court bailiff, of assaulting Miller and his wife with a blackjack.

The court upheld constitutionality of a law permitting incumbents to seek re-election as probate judge even though they are not lawyers. The court ruled against Joseph W. Lippencott of Wilmington who challenged the right of Hugh J. Wright, Clinton county probate judge, to run for re-election.

CROWD ATTENDS

Hears Son of Townsend Plan Leader at Rally Here.

A crowd estimated by Townsend club leaders at nearly 1,000 heard a talk by Robert C. Townsend, secretary-treasurer of the national Townsend organization, at a rally last night at Republican headquarters on North Main street.

County Townsend leaders said it was the "largest and most enthusiastic" Townsend meeting ever held in Mansfield. Townsend followers from a number of north-central Ohio counties attended.

Townsend, who is a son of Dr. Francis Townsend, founder of the movement, urged enactment of the Townsend plan as "the only logical way to put money back in circulation and start the nation back on the road to prosperity."

Rev. Grover Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, gave the invocation at the meeting, and Mayor William J. Locke of Mansfield spoke briefly in greeting the crowd.

There was a musical program and lunch was served after the program.

Friends Say Elliott Would Enter Air Service.

WASHINGTON —(INS)—Friends of Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the president, reported today he is seeking a captain's commission in the army air corps reserve.

Although army officials refuse to confirm or deny the report, young Roosevelt, who is 30 years old, is said to have taken his application up personally with war department leaders.

Since he is married and has two children, Roosevelt properly could claim deferred status in the forthcoming draft.

Not That It Matters

Lessons One Learns About Politics In Deep South, How Cigarets Are Made

—By JANE WILLIAMS

FOR the 'furriner" to try to talk politics in the South Carolina mountains is just about as satisfactory and as exciting as trying to interview the Civil war soldier in Central park.

In the first place, if the "furriner" is discreet and has a proper valuation on his life, he won't express his own views unless they happen to co-incide exactly with those of the interviewee. And in the second place, those mountaineers take their politics like their religion and their skull-pop—straight. (Skull-pop is a clear, uncolored brew, one sip of which makes your skull pop.)

From which you will gather that after two weeks in the mountains, all I know about the political picture down there is what I see by the papers. But I can tell Mr. Willkie this: if he has any hopes of cracking the Solid South this year by winning over South Carolina and Texas, he's headed for disappointment at least in Carolina.

It is true that many Carolinians have changed their politics this year, but they are found only in those same brackets of anti-Roosevelts that you find everywhere—business men and industrialists. The rank and file, although frowning at mention of the New Deal, will continue to put their X under the Democratic rooster. The men back in the lumber camps don't like the 40-hour week which has drastically cut their earning capacities, but that is not sufficient reason for breaking century old precedents. A third term? They don't mind so long as the third-termer is a Democrat.

Now if his religion were wrong that would be a serious matter. North Carolinians must have suffered agonies in 1928 when they had to choose between politics and religion—and for the first time in history voted Republican because a Catholic was a candidate for president of the United States.

Yes sir, they take 'em straight down there—politics, religion and skull pop.

I'VE seen assembly lines turn out ranges, refrigerators, tires and automobiles, but none is more fascinating than the cigaret assembly line at the Chesterfield plant in Durham, N. C. One line turns out 1,200 completed cigarets every minute, 72,000 every hour, eight hours a day. And there are several assembly lines. In the final process of putting them into cartons, one girl is supposed to pack 12 cartons of 10 packages each every minute.

But the figure that impressed me most is that which represents the company's DAILY supply of government tax stamps. Every single day, six days a week, a messenger from the company goes to the federal revenue office in Durham and buys $260,000 worth of tax stamps. Every day. And just for one brand of cigarets.

We live in an age of fantastic figures. And I don't mean those lovely things with curves.

WENT through the Chesterfield stemming plant where the cured tobacco is brought in great hogesheads, stemmed, blended, dehydrated, and ground. On one floor 1,500 colored women, all in neat blue and white uniforms work with the tobacco. And every last one of them wears broken down felt bedroom slippers.

When they all sing and work to the tempo of the music, it's something.

* * *

BUT there must be gold in them thar cigarets, for Duke university is the result of the millions made by the Dukes in tobacco. I think the institution has received something like eighty million dollars from the tobacco company. And think what the government has made from it!

Duke university is one of the handsomest educational lay-outs in America and when the years have ivied its towers and English buildings, there will be none to surpass it.

REV. GROVER E. SWOYER made a nice point on "compulsory" conscription at the Country club Tuesday night. To those critics who insist that conscription is undemocratic and infringes on personal rights, he pointed out that it is no more undemocratic than compelling a child to attend school. Actually a child is conscripted for its educational years.

And that your dollars and mine have always been conscripted for taxes used to run your government, your state and your community.

LAUREL leaves to Coach Al Fendrick of Madison high who had the courage to demand the retirement of those football players who just can't resist taking other people's property. It may be "cute" for very small boys to come home dragging towels, salt shakers and silverware from the homes of friends, but you naturally expect football players to have overcome the "cute" tricks of their diaper days.

Personally, I've always felt that those souvenir hounds who snitch towels from hotels and silverware from restaurants, wouldn't be above lifting little items from the home of friends.

Ask the Mansfield matron who entertained a small group of close friends at bridge and missed a prized trinket from the shelf after they had gone.

FAMILY MEETS DEMANDS MADE BY ABDUCTOR

De Tristans Agree to Pay $100,000 For Return Of Young Son.

Police Chief Claude Hirshey of Hillsborough made contents of the wordy ransom note public immediately after it was turned over to him.

"I believed it possible at that time that officers might apprehend a man without a hat and with a 3-year-old child in the car as described, and because I felt the kidnaper would not retain the child for any length of time, but would kill him and retain some of his clothes for identification so ransom could be collected," Chief Hirshey said.

With the note was a piece of cardboard, which the De Tristans were told to retain for identification in future contacts. The kidnaper said if the family was willing to meet the demands it was to insert, in the automobile section of the San Francisco Examiner, the following advertisement:

"Lincoln Zephyr—Fou. door deluxe sedan. Radio. Many extras. Beautiful light grey finish. $845. Cash only. Box (insert number) Ex."

Cates, who with his wife came here for the recent marriage of the countess' brother, Charles Christenson, was taking an active part in arranging to comply with the kidnaper's wishes. He told newsmen:

We have requested all law enforcement agencies to withhold any action in this case until we have complied with any and all requests of the man who has our child."

The socially-prominent and wealthy De Tristan family has an estate in France which, before the war, they used to visit annually.

Their Hillsborough home is an expansive, cream colored stucco, set back about 100 feet from the winding road that runs through their part of town.

Before withdrawing from the scene last night FBI agents and local police questioned a number of persons who had seen the kidnaping or gotten a glimpse of the car as it sped away.

Noah H. Powers, a gardener in the community, said that just before noon he heard a woman screaming and saw Miss Foley trying to hold the kidnaper.

"He was a big, stocky guy and he shoved her aside," Powers said. "He had the baby in his arms and shoved the baby in the car ahead of him, as he jumped through the door on the driver's seat. It happened as quick as you could snap your fingers."

Police considered it probable the kidnaper had made a careful study of the neighborhood, learning that the nurse and boy frequently went for walks along that street.

Acting Captain of Inspectors Michael Mitchell of the San Francisco police thought the kidnaping was the work of an amateur. Supporting this theory, he said, were the following observations:

1. The kidnaper allowed the maid to get a good look at him.
2. He failed to cover or remove the license plates on the car he used.
3. He intended to hand the note to the maid, instead of mailing it.

Abduction 18th Major Kidnaping

SAN FRANCISCO —(INS)— The kidnaping of 3-year-old Marc De Tristan at nearby Hillsborough yesterday was the eighteenth major kidnaping since the first of these crimes in 1931, G-men said today.

The first of the wave of major "snatches" was the abduction of Adolphus Busch Orthwein, grandson of the St. Louis brewer in 1931. It was followed by the kidnap-murder of Charles Lindbergh, 20-month-old son of the famous aviator.

The $100,000 ransom demanded, and ready to be paid, for young De Tristan is the largest sum involved since kidnapers demanded $200,000 for the return of little George Weyerhauser in Tacoma, Wash. Of the 17 previous major kidnapings, all but the kidnap-murder of 10-year-old Charles Mattson at Tacoma have been solved.

WILLKIE ENTERS SAN FRANCISCO

rade program, which was to occupy Willkie's time from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m., speeches were slated during the parade at the civic center, the mission district, two street corners, the East Bay section, where many industrial plants are located, Berkeley high school athletic field, Lakeside park in Oakland and the federal building plaza on Treasure Island.

The remainder of the afternoon was left free but Willkie was to deliver a major talk, possibly on foreign policy, at the civic auditorium this evening.

At Sacramento, enroute to San Francisco, Willkie reported to a trainside audience:

"I have been advised to pull my punches—well, I don't know how to fight that way.

"If any of the timid pussyfooters that are afraid to speak want to pursue that policy, I don't want them to talk to me. A spade is a spade in Sacramento, and also in Washington."

Those traveling with Willkie gained the impression that his remarks were intended more for advisers, professional and amateur, than for the audience, especially as he introduced the comment with the remark:

"I have some friends who, now and then—that's one of the interesting things about campaigning for president, you get a lot of free advice—say 'Wendell you should pull your punches'."

The last time he used a similar phase was two days after a conference with Republican leaders of 22 states at Rushville.

Willkie is standing the rigorous schedule of appearances and speeches well. Since a doctor was added to his staff he has been more careful in the use of his voice and responds with show of meekness to the physician's orders although he does manage to sneak in an extra cigaret now and then.

Apparently he expects to continue right on through the campaign until November, without rest, for today he had added Michigan to his itinerary, carrying his present tour through to October 1.

After that date he is expected to move into New England and the midwest through November with the possibility of a deep south trip and a few more appearances in Texas.

The deep south trip, one regarded as certain, is now simply a possibility. Willkie has made no comment but apparently the response to his appeal for the support of Democrats and independents opposed to the third term has not been sufficient as yet to pave the way for a definite declaration on the southern trip.

The candidate will remain in San Francisco until late tonight and then his train will move along toward Oregon and Washington before heading east.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, September 22.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds much encouragement for not only conventional Sabbath activities and interests but also for dealing with superiors, employers or those in authority. It is opportune time for seeking promotions, favors or honors. But in other directions, especially relations between elders and women, the signs are not auspicious. Be cautious with writings of all natures.

Those whose birthday it is should have an encouraging year, with definite prospect for promotions, favors, tokens of preferment and esteem. Otherwise the auguries are not so favorable, especially for the feminine element or in social or domestic affairs.

A child born on this day may be talented and ambitious, rising to fine place in the esteem of its superiors and employers. It may attain public position.

For Monday, September 23.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a particularly lively and pleasant day, with all things, business and private, moving at swift tempo. All of a cultural and intellectual nature is encouraged, with the aims and aspirations of the young and romantic flourishing. Pleasure, courtship, perhaps marriage, are among the predictions.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a lively, pleasant and productive year, in business, speculation, writings, art—any line of creative effort. In private life—much pleasant experience courtship and for the eligible, marriage. But shun extravagance and impetuosities.

A child born on this day may be exceedingly versatile and talented making a success of almost any creative or cultural work.

CAROL FACING 'MAN WITHOUT COUNTRY' LIFE

Few Nations Willing to Give Haven to Royal Exile From Rumania.

(Editor's Note: When Carol renounced his throne and fled Rumania with Magda Lupescu, the new dictator announced most of the ex-king's wealth had been confiscated. Nevertheless, Carol is believed to be well-fixed financially.)

By ROGER D. GREENE.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Driven from his throne, ex-King Carol II of Rumania today faces the prospect of becoming forever a man without a country.

Rebuffed by France, the haven of his first exile in 1925-30, the royal Balkan outcast and his fading flame-tressed Magda "Bibi" Lupescu have been variously reported seeking a refuge in the United States, Canada, and South America while tempororily residing in Portugal.

Few nations in war-nerved Europe at present would be willing to risk the displeasure of Adolf Hitler by harboring the fallen monarch, who once opposed Hitler and then, in a futile attempt to save his crown, tried too late to hop aboard the Nazi train.

Even in his happier days, when Carol voluntarily became an exile and drifted for five years with Magda Lupescu, the exking ran into many obstacles.

England bluntly kicked him out. And France set sharp-eyed "Flics"—agents of the Surete Generale, or secret police—to watch his every move.

Carol's first exile was plagued, too, by a little matter of his morganatic first wife, "Zizi" Lambrino, who embarrassingly took up residence a short block from Carol's red-brick villa shared by Mme. Lupescu and seven dogs in Neuilly, just outside Paris.

Carol's royal blood-pressure boiled dangerously when it was pointed out to him that "Zizi"—with the aid of a pair of opera glasses—could look directly into the rooms of his retreat with "Bibi."

And he raged when his ingenious first wife, mother of his first-born morganatic son, Mircea, paraded the boy in front of the villa and had him pipe shrilly, over and over:

"Papa! Papa! Papa. . . ."

Mme. Lambrino, a commoner with whom Carol had eloped in 1916, had long since taken refuge in Paris. She had received threats, she said, that her son by Carol would be kidnaped—lest he become a pretender to the Rumanian throne—and would be made a 20th century counterpart of the ill-fated "Man in the Iron Mask."

Madame "Zizi" then twisted the knife by suing Carol for $400,000 alimony and demanding that their child be recognized under the name of Mircea von Hohenzollern. (Carol's father was Ferdinand of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen).

Apparently the case was settled out of court, but soon after the "papa"-shouting episode, Carol and his red-headed charmer, Magda Lupescu, fled to England, where they secluded themselves in Surrey, occasionally turning up at a London theater. Out of friendship for his mother, Queen Marie, the granddaughter of Britain's own Queen Victoria, the British government tolerated Carol and his "Bibi" until it was discovered that Carol, violating his pledge, had plotted to seize the Rumanian throne.

In 1930, he made a dramatic return from exile to seize the Rumanian throne.

Now, ten years later, he apparently starts his second exile in a better financial status.

Besides a $60,000 annual "pension" guaranteed him by the Rumanian government as he fled, he has reportedly cached the tidy sum of $4,000,000 in a London bank, along with $400,000 worth of shares in the Suez Canal as an anticipated nest-egg against just such a rainy day as now engulfs him.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Looks as if Sterling Hayden, who's been places, is going places. And maybe Errol Flynn had better start moving over now.

Hayden is the slim, broad shouldered, human skyscraper (6 ft. 4) type. He's handsome, but not overly so, and rugged. He has blue eyes, crisp blond hair, 212 pounds—and poise.

It was the poise that did it.* Twenty-four years old, he boasts a theatrical background limited to one appearance as a spear-carrier in some show back east. But he's a sailing man, and somebody saw him handling a boat in a heavy blow and he looked exactly like the man in charge, which he was, of both boat and the elements. Somebody said here's a movie bet. The movies need leading men who look like the man in charge.

You'll see him first in "Virginia," in which he makes stately Madeleine Carroll look like a little girl in pinafores, and in which he practically dwarfs Fred McMurray, well over 6 feet himself. How does it come that a youngster who's merely carried a spear, and just once, gets a leading role first time at bat, and in a big picture to boot? Well, that's a chance Paramount and Director E. H. Griffith are taking.

• • •

"When you have a prospect like this," says Ned Griffith, "it's foolish to put him through the usual grind of bits and extra stuff. We know this boy has something—we're going to use it now."

A newspaperman, Tom Horgan of Boston, took steps when Sterling Hayden showed up broke in Boston after an ocean voyage. Horgan sent a letter and pictures to Hollywood, and Hollywood arranged a test. Hayden met Griffith in New York, where Griffith put him through a scene from "Anna Christie." Griffith considers "Anna Christie" a difficult test piece—very theatrical, requiring good delivery to make it sound "natural."

Hayden had poise enough to get a contract immediately. They shipped him to Hollywood, and when Griffith started "Virginia," they put Sterling Hayden right with the major leaguers.

He's a native son of Montclair, N. J., but a dozen cities have been his home. He learned sailing up in Maine, took shore leave only long enough to make a pass at a couple of tony schools, but financial difficulties sent him back to sea.

He voyaged on the schooner Puritan from New London, Conn., to Balboa Beach, Calif., for 25 cents a month. Took a freight train back. He has done six round trips to the Grand Banks of Newfoundland with a Gloucester fishing crew. He was fireman on the steamer Florida on 11 round trips to Havana, skipper on the schooner Chiva, mate on the Yankee for a 'round-the-world cruise, navigator on the Gertrude L. Thibaud when it raced the Bluenose in the International Fishermen's race. He's been practically as many better than working."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1940.

The Detroit News rather grudgingly admits that the Tiger-Indian series now being played may be regarded by many as not so important as the Battle of Britain.

Lively Local Campaign Sighted

FAR FROM the dullness that might have been anticipated after the quiet that has marked early stages of the campaign, Mansfield has promise of entering October with politics keyed to a high tempo and "rallies" coming thick and fast.

Among the promised local exhibits of political wares are senatorial, gubernatorial and congressional aspirants of both parties, with Wendell L. Willkie, Republican standard bearer as that party's high spot in campaign offerings.

Add to all of this the persistent electioneering of candidates for a number of county offices and you will recognize prospects for as lively a month's campaign as this community has experienced in many years—and at a time when the great jury of voters will have already had opportunity to weigh much of the evidence and are ready to reach final decisions as to the verdict to be rendered Tuesday, November 5.

Should the Flag Be Saluted?

ACTION by a township school board in Mahoning county, expelling ten pupils for refusal to salute the American flag, on the basis of religious scruples, serves to again publicize a situation in which the ideas of a sect now known as "Jehovah's Witnesses" appear to clash with a guarantee of religious freedom under the Constitution.

Similar incidents in other states have disclosed widely varying views as to proper procedure in such cases, with a probably less tolerant public attitude during the present national emergency than is noted in more normal times.

What is known as "religion," which broadly means "belief in a supreme being," has many strange manifestations in human conduct and in interpretation of individual obligations. This has been true all through history, from the biblical record of human sacrifices to the recent snake-bite rites of Kentucky zealots.

The fine line of demarcation between religion and fanaticism has never been clearly drawn and intervention of the law in banning the use of snakes in so-called "religious" ceremonies in Kentucky is quite understandable. Nor would there be likelihood of sanction of use of human beings or animals as sacrifices, in accordance with ancient customs.

It appears, therefore that the constitutional grant of religious freedom may be assumed to be within limits also requiring due regard for obligations of patriotic citizenship in the nation that accords this privilege.

Readers interested in further information regarding "Jehovah's Witnesses" will find a factual article in last week's issue of the Saturday Evening Post, in which the history of the organization is traced from its inception by Pastor Russell, through its period of "International Bible Students" with popularization of the slogan, "Millions now living will never die." on into the inherited leadership of Judge Rutherford and adoption of the name now used.

Present interest in the movement is also heightened by belief that members of this group will play a considerable "conscientious objector" part in the conscription program now under way.

Beneficial Weather Changes

WHAT is it that makes Americans different from the people in the lands of their origins? Where do Americans get that boundless energy that is considered a distinctive characteristic?

There may be many reasons, including our history, our freedom, our elbow room and remoteness from Old World boundary lines. There is also weather.

Dr. William F. Peterson, professor of pathology at the University of Illinois college of medicine, gives the weather chief credit. Americans have more varieties of weather than many other people, he says. That is, the North American continent is in a region of great weather fluctuations. The constant passage of alternating cold air masses and relatively warm air masses, the varied storms, the sudden temperature variations, require tremendous physiological adjustment from day to day, sometimes from hour to hour.

This is hard on the sick, the very young and the very old. It is fatiguing. But it makes for tougher individuals. "Indeed, the fluctuations in the air mass probably are the main factor in bringing about the energy drive of people domiciled under these conditions," he says.

Calling All Waiters!

A GENTEEL controversy seems to be going on in New York as to the best way to summon an elusive waiter in a restaurant. Servitors, in that city especially, have a habit of wandering off somewhere and getting lost, or puttering around the dining room absent-mindedly and avoiding the eye of a hungry guests. What to do in such cases?

One authority suggests the usual practice of continental Europe, which is also found in Cuba and some other South American countries. The hungry guest looks in the direction of a waiter and says "Psst!" When uttered fiercely enough it usually gets action. The same device does for calling a cab.

A commentator in the New York Times suggests other devices, such as dropping a spoon on the floor or striking an empty water glass with a knife handle. Then there is the more "aristocratic" method of raising the right hand as if taking an oath instead of uttering one, and violently snapping the fingers. But some people, perhaps too gently reared, are not very good snappers.

The really American way, says an office associate, would be to glare in the direction of an evasive waiter and yell, "Hey, you!"

With things as they are it may be a good idea to hold school children to practical subjects and let European geography shift for itself.

President Roosevelt is again moving Thanksgiving ahead a week—to November 21—which allows time to get in all the election returns.

Revealing Twitch.

A well known New York newspaperman who formerly spent much time at Albany has the laugh on the Washington correspondents. He related recently how he was able to discern when Roosevelt as governor of New York sought to mislead newspapermen by a deviation from the facts, as charged recently when he said the fifty World war destroyers would not be a consideration in the trade for the British naval bases.

"I soon discovered after watching Roosevelt's facial expressions closely," the New Yorker said "that when he was deceiving us there was a nervous twitch around his mouth. After that I knew what to accept as a fact and what to ignore."—Kansas City Times.

Indirect Tax Democracy's Enemy

By GUS W. DYER

Professor of Economics and Sociology, Vanderbilt University.

The average person is mentally incapable of comprehending an indirect tax as a tax. He believes that indirect taxes are paid by the corporations on which the taxes are assessed.

There are, perhaps, millions of voters in this country who do not believe they pay any taxes at all, because no tax is collected from them directly.

* * *

ANY increase in direct taxes will meet resistance. But heavy increases in indirect taxes are immensely popular. The demagogue capitalizes this ignorance of the masses with reference to taxes, and becomes invincible as a candidate on a platform that promises huge governmental appropriations and wild governmental expenditures to be paid for by "soaking" the rich and taxing corporations to the limit.

The crowd has approved the increase of the national debt to the point of threatening national bankruptcy because the rank and file are totally blind as to the nature of an indirect tax, and are under a delusion that indirect taxes do not reach them.

If something is not done, and done quickly, to check the reign of the demagogue in the perversion of the indirect tax, nothing, it is believed, can save us from national bankruptcy.

* * *

APPROXIMATELY one-fourth of the gross income of the American people is appropriated to the cost of government. This huge sum is taken from consumers chiefly by means of the indirect tax. This means that the working man who earns twenty dollars a week must turn over approximately five dollars every Saturday night to the government in taxes, and the working girl who receives sixteen dollars a week must give approximately one-fourth of her wages to the government in taxes.

Since these taxes are added in the prices of the commodities purchased they are hidden from the eyes of the rank and file. The tragedy of the deplorable condition is that millions are voting to increase the tax burdens on their own backs to the breaking point in total ignorance of what they are doing. In Tennessee where gasoline sells for 16 cents a gallon, the poor man who pays $1.60 for ten gallons of gas pays in taxes 85 cents for the privilege of using it.

* * *

MANY billions above the regular annual deficit of three or four billion dollars will be appropriated for defense. The national debt has almost reached the fifty billion mark. This huge burden will be forced on the unborn generations. It would be next to criminal under present conditions for this generation to increase this burden on the helpless and defenseless.

Every dollar spent for preparedness should be paid by this generation. We are able to pay this cost, and, it is believed, we are under the most solemn obligation to pay it. Would it not be cowardly, immoral, and fundamentally dishonest to shift the burden that belongs to us to the shoulders of others simply because we have the power to do it?

It is here proposed that congress meet the whole cost of preparedness by means of a sales tax. Approximately five billion dollars a year could be raised by a sales tax of five per cent. A sales tax is really not an additional tax on the consumer if we decide to carry this burden. It simply represents a change from a vicious, dishonest, destructive method of taxation to an open, honest, constructive method.

No other means, it is believed, would be so effective in checking the wild, destructive spending spree of this government as a sales tax.

Listen, World!

Tall Lady Stands Guard.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

IN ALL my visits to New York, I'd never seen her. I'd howdy'd every other spotlight personality except the Tall Lady with the flaming torch who guards America's gates. So one late afternoon, I went down for a get-together.

Typically American, that drive from Forty-Ninth street to the old harbor, typical of its pomp and power. Ivory steeples dissolving in violet dusk, magnificent mansions merging with the shadows, canyons of Big Business heaving their chromiumed cliffs, flaunting their vaulted treasure. Mile after mile of evidence of assured success. And then beyond a circle of emerald lawn, a swirl of white-capped sea. I saw her at last—the Goddess of Liberty.

Unforgettable, that first sight. Blanketing her feet was the city's smoke and mist. Rushing upon her from the south came the flying fury of a tropic storm. And toward the east one almost saw and heard that hell by the cliffs of Dover. But, above it all, she towered unmoved, serene—her calm face golden in the sunset, her great arm upholding its torch above all fear and fury.

Glorious! My heart leaped in the swift tribute every mortal must pay to her splendor and the thing she represents. Then, as swiftly, came the inevitable doubt we all are feeling in this mad age—did she still represent those things? Did she still stand for those things she had stood for once, in a simpler, saner world—for freedom and justice, a decent deal for the poor and weak as well as for the rich and strong? Or had she lost her meaning? And her potency?

Those tremendous buildings, that vast display of wealth—it was all impressive. But Belgium had been impressive, too, and Rotterdam, and Paris. Now they were dead. Not only because of the blitzkrieg but because the termites had been at work within.

Had they undermined America, too? Had our proud boasts become a mockery? The question lay heavy on my heart, on the hearts of millions. I looked at her once more, that strong, rayed head now ringed around with clouds. Then turned away. "Let's go back another way," I said.

The sea fell behind. That incredible sky-line disappeared. We were in little streets now, narrow and dingy, crowded. Wrinkled old folk chattering in a dozen languages on the stoop, hanging out of the windows, grinning, gossiping, bantering jokes. Little shops bright as Oriental bazaars. Girls, lovely as anything in the Social Register and probably ten times as clever, clicking by in charming hair-do's and the latest version of the Duchess of Windsor's gowns. So gay, so friendly.

Then, at a turn, the street seemed to explode into a tornado of light and laughter, color and noise. Stoops and fire escapes jammed, now. Sidewalks overflowing with Spaniards, Italians, Japanese, Gypsies, Jews, Russians. Illuminated arches overhead—scarlet, blue, topaz, emerald green. Food stands bedecked with bunting, flags, paper flowers.

Surging down the asphalt, a carnival tide. Prancing beauties in satin shorts and capes, twirling drummajor wands. Boy friends and brothers swaggering past in an uproar of trumpets, drums and bell lyrics. Tinier, wide-eyed sisters solemn in confirmation veils. And swaying overhead, brilliant in its convoluted gold, a great canopied throne—a gentle-faced plaster saint steadied by a nervous young acolyte in vestments, celebrating the feast day of St. John.

People from the far corners of the earth, people of a score of creeds—cheering, singing, dancing, adoring. Celebrating without hindrance. Going their homely happy way without fear. Keeping what they wished of their old-world traditions, taking what they would of the new-world culture.

Across the dark waters their people were dying, butchered by blitzkrieg, shackled by intolerance. But here, on New York's Broome street, these, then children, were building new hopes and homes.

* * *

Tall Lady, standing firm above a darkening sea, holding up her torch against a stormy sky—has she lost her meaning or her power? Is there justice still for the poor, friendliness and fair play for the weak? She hasn't, and there is and ever more will be.

THANK GOD!

Summary of Week's Happenings

Congress Okays Huge Spending, Makes Ready for Adjournment

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

ON THAT wintry day a year ago last January when the president stood before the new 76th congress, Britain and Germany were still at peace. Mr. Roosevelt outlined only two jobs for congress: increase defenses and make the laws already written more workable.

The congress, which was cleaning its desks this week, stuck to his objectives. It attempted virtually no reforms, boosted defenses with vengeance. All told it probably will have okayed the spending of at least thirty billion dollars, far more than any other peacetime congress.

The most spectacular bill of its three sessions was the unprecedented peacetime draft bill signed by FDR Monday. Under the bill every American man who is 21 and not yet 36 must register for compulsory military training on Oct. 16. Lots for conscripts will be drawn in Washington.

By November 75,000 men will be called up, by January 400,000, and by spring perhaps 900,000.

A hitch came just before final passage when the senate sent the "draft industry" section back to conference committee for changes. Senators argued it gave uncooperative industrialists legal outs. So the joint committee whacked out the objectionable phrases.

Four Classes.

Soon after Americans register they will receive an eight-page questionnaire for return within five days. On the basis of replies local boards will place them in one of these classes.

Class I—available for immediate service.

Class II—service deferred because engaged in essential jobs.

Class III—service deferred because of dependents.

Class IV—service deferred by law (judges, etc.).

Until war or some other emergency arrives, all married men living with their wives will be presumed to have dependents regardless of their wives' financial status. College students drafted will be able to defer service until the school year is over.

'Dignity' To Be Appreciated.

"In the military service," said Mr Roosevelt, conscripts "will be intelligently led, comfortably clothed, well fed and adequately armed and equipped for basic training . . . (they) will learn to live side by side . . . and to appreciate each other's dignity as American citizens."

To pay cost of conscription, lawmakers considered a special $2,000,000,000 appropriation.

Congress received from FDR the defense commission's declaration of policy which had for its basic theme: "speed of delivery of all items of the defense program is essential."

It warned against the creation of underlying bottlenecks and undue geographic concentration of orders; and urged that the impact of the program on consumers be recognized.

Sidney Hillman, labor member of the commission, advised union leaders that "all work carried on as part of the defense program should comply with federal statutory provisions. . . . This applies to the Walsh-Healey Act, the Fair Labor Standards Act, the National Labor Relations Act, etc."

At Home

Sabotage at Kenvil?

"It is highly likely we'll never be able to determine the cause of the explosion," said an official of the Hercules Powder company after the blast at Kenvil, N. J., which killed at least 48 persons.

But the Dies Unamerican committee suspected sabotage and had agents search the premises for clues. A sheriff's force raided the German-American Bund Camp at nearby Andover. New Jersey's Senator Barbour blamed "foreign agents" and Rep. Dickstein of New York didn't think the blast happened "through any miracle."

In New York officials of the German Library of Information, which adjoins the German consulate, were charged with penal code violation by failing to register it as a business corporation. The motion of the librarians that it was a branch of the German government was denied. The Dies committee seized records and correspondence three weeks ago.

Middletown's Defenders.

Residents of Muncie, Ind. (Pop. 50,000), enjoy calling themselves guinea pigs. They know that their city is the famous "Middletown" of America described by Columbia Sociologist Robert Lynd in his two penetrating volumes "Middletown" and "Middletown in Transition."

Lynd wrote about their antics, morals and prejudices. He mentioned that they were thumpingly patriotic.

Now Muncie folks say they are setting an example for America by forming a county reserve force to defend the city against any military threat. The force is similar to Britain's home guard. The 170 volunteer defenders come from all occupations, are over 35 years old, and drill thrice weekly.

* * *

Willkie's Week.

For a solid week, a sweating, occasionally hoarse Wendell Willkie flung verbal roundhouses at his presidential opponent.

He told Chicago stockyard workers that FDR "doesn't know what it means to work with his hands." Before Chicago negroes he charged that FDR's New Deal had created "some Jim Crow departments."

He informed farmers at Joliet, Ill., that four men in the world—Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin and Roosevelt—regard themselves as "indispensable."

In his major address at Coffeyville, Kas., he charged that FDR's influence has "weakened, rather than strengthened. Democracy throughout the world. . . . I charge that here in America he has strained our Democratic institutions to the breaking point."

Mothers Vote on Draft.

Suffragettes complained during the World war that mothers should have a chance to vote on the drafting of their sons. In 1920 they got the vote. Now women have eight spokesmen in Congress, three with sons eligible for the draft. During the debate on conscription all eight were highly vocal. Five favored, three opposed. And of the three mothers, Senator Caraway and Rep. McMillan (D-SC) favored the draft, and Rep. Bolton (R-O) opposed.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Corporations Have No Souls."

In the same sentiment as "The public be damned!" which fairly or unfairly is the attitude often attributed to the railroads, we frequently hear the saying, "Corporations have no souls."

Strangely enough, although these words have neither an alien nor far away sound to American ears, it is in England and in the sixteenth century that the expression had its origin.

The first recorded usage of "Corporations have no souls" was in a famous lawsuit that was fought in the English courts.

Its authorship is credited to Sir Edward Coke, who, during the proceedings in the case of Sutton's hospital, is reported to have said:

"They (corporations) cannot commit treason, nor be outlawed, nor excommunicate, for they have no souls."

This Is Ohio

ONE of the favorite Ohio spots for fall trips are the great natural curiosities to be found in Hocking county. The region affords some of the most picturesque views to be found in Ohio.

Among the many popular places are: Ash cave, rock house, cedar falls, rock bridge, and old man's cave. To see this wild scenery best, it is necessary to take zigzag trips afoot down the precipitous sides of the canyon's floor. Good roads lead to all places of interest in this area.

Abroad

Camacho Sees a Sign.

Mexico's pyrotechnical politics are such that newly elected presidents feel a lot more secure in the jobs if they can wangle a nod from big, stable U. S. A.

Husky, handsome Gen. Camacho, disciple of President Cardenas, has been officially declared the winner of July's election but his opponent, conservative Gen. Almazan, claims himself the next president. Almazan was reported back in Mexico after visiting in Baltimore. Camacho looked anxiously to Washington for a nod.

This week he got—if not a nod—at least a wink from Secretary of State Hull, who said Camacho would be officially welcomed (presumably by FDR) if he cared to visit Washington.

Science

Views on Vitamin.

The most potent bodily substance ever discovered is a tiny, colorless crystal called biotin. Scientists, in recent years, couldn't explain its identity but knew it was vital to all plant growth; and that chickens and rats deprived of it developed terrible skin diseases.

One rich source, they found, is molasses. Other sources are yeast, pork liver, milk and grass juice. Last week-end the American Chemical Society meeting in Detroit heard that Cornell Medical School researchers had cleared up biotin's mystery. Biotin is identical with the new vitamin H.

2. Discovery of a vaccine for measles, by University of Pennsylvania and Squibb Institute scientists.

MISS JULIANNE PALMER HARRY WINELAND WED

Couple Exchange Vows at Altar of First Congregational Church Friday Afternoon; On Eastern Trip.

WHITE with touches of red and green formed the color scheme for the pretty wedding of Miss Julianne Palmer and Harry Aultman Wineland yesterday afternoon at the First Congregational church. White candles lighted the altar, which was banked with huckleberry leaves and smilax, and beauty baskets of red carnations added notes of color.

Preceding the ceremony, which was solemnized at 4:30 o'clock by Rev. S. C. McCammon of Mariemont, Cincinnati, Mrs. W. W. Webb played a group of organ nuptial selections including, "Ich Liebe Dich" by Grieg, Nevin's "Love Song," "For You Alone" by Gruhl, "I Promise You" by Lerner and Rubenstein's "Thou'rt Like Unto a Flower." She played the traditional wedding marches by Wagner and Mendelssohn, and during the service, "Sacred Vows" by Elgar. The bride's cousin, John Baker of Hillsdale, was the soloist, and he sang, "Believe Me Of All Those Endearing Young Charms" and "Still as the Night."

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay R. Palmer, 793 Park avenue west, was given in marriage by her father. Her bridal gown was of white slipper satin, fashioned with a pearl trimmed yoke, fitted bodice and long train. A halo cap edged with a pearl band held her three-tiered, train length veil in place, and she carried a semi-colonial shower bouquet of white orchids and gardenias.

The bride's only sister, Miss Patricia Palmer, was her maid-of-honor, and she too wore a white slipper satin gown. It was made like the bride's dress, except that it had no train. Miss Palmer wore a white velvet Queen Victoria bandeaux trimmed with brilliant red plums on her head, and her slippers matched the feathers. Her semi-colonial bouquet was of red carnations and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mr. Wineland, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Wineland, 225 South Mulberry street, chose Gene Zediker to be his best man. Jerry Palmer, brother of the bride, Richard Sturges, Robert Isaly and Earl Herrick were the ushers.

Mrs. Palmer appeared at her daughter's wedding wearing a taupe wool costume suit trimmed in velvet of the same shade. Her accessories were blue, and her shoulder corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Wineland was attired in a soldier blue dress with black accessories for the wedding, and she had an orchid shoulder corsage.

Following the ceremony a buffet-tea was held for 95 guests at the Women's Club. At this time, Mrs. R. M. Bushnell, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. W. H. Burleson presided at the tea table, which was decorated with white roses and pompons and white tapers in silver holders.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Wineland left for an eastern wedding trip. For traveling, the former Miss Palmer wore a vintage shade wool dress with matching velveteen coat, matching accessories and white orchid shoulder corsage. After Oct. 15 the couple will reside in the Zediker apartments on Blymyer avenue. Mrs. Wineland, a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and the Mansfield Business Training school, has been employed at the Ohio Brass company. Mr. Wineland is associated in business with his father.

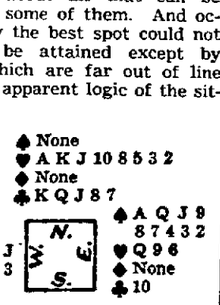
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

NO TIME TO ARGUE

When your side's bidding has gone wrong on a freak deal—one of those montrosities full of extremely long suits—it is unwise for either partner to upbraid the other. No bidding system yet devised is of much value in reaching the right contract on such bizarre distributions. Intelligent guesswork is about all that can be asked on some of them. And occasionally the best spot could not possibly be attained except by moves which are far out of line with the apparent logic of the situation.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ♥	3 ♠	Pass
6 ♠	6 ♥	Dbl

Believe it or not, that hand was dealt in the orthodox way in a regular rubber bridge game in a prominent New York club. North made exactly the six hearts which he bid, losing only one trick, to East's heart Q.

When it was over everybody began to bawl everybody else out. North berated South for not showing his club suit, as the side could have made a grand slam in clubs. East then opened up on West, censuring him for bidding his immense hand so weakly, when a grand slam could have been made at diamonds, or for failing to support the spades, in which a grand slam also was possible. South also accused North of bad bidding for not showing his clubs on the second turn, which would have steered the side into the club grand slam.

Truly it is peculiar to find a deal like that, which can furnish a grand slam in spades, diamonds or clubs, played in the only suit that cannot produce one.

There is just one worthwhile lesson in this hand. Do not censure your partner for failure to reach the best possible spot. He is doing the best guessing he can, and so are you.

Your Week-end Lesson.

What is the best way for the declarer to play for the largest possible number of tricks in his suit, granting plenty of side entries into both his own hand and dummy, with the various numbered holdings opposite him in the dummy?

CHAPTER XXIV

Slowly Carol's feelings returned: her thoughts stirred. And later she was to think that her first thought was: Edwina must care for Alan as I care for Norman. Deep down beneath five years of luxury and travel, she cares. She wants to fight for him, to save him because she feels as guilty as he . . .

And then she thought of Alan, his kindness, his generosity, his strange moods, his distress the night she had mentioned that perhaps he was Mr. Hartley's heir, his ambition, his recent wish for a large wedding and a large house.

* * *

Edwina broke the painful silence.

"Try to understand and forgive him, Carol," she said, "and stand by. Alan needs you now. Even though what he has done is almost unforgivable . . ."

"Did you think I wouldn't stand by him? I'm trying to think what is best to do now. My father will know. I may do the wrong thing, make it worse for him . . ."

"What will your father say?"

"Very little, but he'll see both sides of it—as I do. Poor Alan, poor Mr. Hartley. Your sympathies sway from one to the other. But I understand so many things I didn't understand before. I don't suppose I ever really knew Alan. I thought I did. Only his mother knew him, and you . . ."

"And I almost decided to go to New York tonight with Norman. He isn't coming back. Do you know why, Carol?"

"Why . . ."

"Because of you. He's terribly in love with you."

Because of her! But her mind would not hold it now. She could not listen to Edwina tell her that Norman loved her—not now! Yet the thought rushed through and all other thoughts paused for it. . . . "He loves me How stupid I was not to recognize it. All this time, each time we've seen each other so much . . ."

"I'd rather not hear about that now, Edwina," Carol said, slowly. "You'll probably never hear about it."

"It's just as well."

* * *

When Carol's father came, she went quickly to meet him and kissed him and together they came into the living room.

"Edwina Burke?" Dr. Tallant asked pleasantly.

Edwina smiled. "I see that my reputation has preceded me."

"The reputation of a generous young woman."

Carol said gently. "Don't go, Father." To Edwina she said, "I'll tell him. You've done your part. And don't go, please . . ."

Dr. Tallant put his arm around Carol. "You don't have to tell me, dear. I know. That's where I've been. I came home to tell you."

Carol asked, "But how did you know?"

Her father spoke quietly. "Mr. Hartley is ill. His servant called for me this afternoon. I've been there once or twice before, you know. When I got there today, I found Mr. Fenton with him and when Mr. Fenton discovered I was the father of the girl Alan is going to marry he told me. He thought it best, Mr. Hartley is very ill indeed, Carol, and it will be far worse for Alan if he dies. . . ."

Edwina asked, "Why?"

"Because, while he lives, there is a slim chance they will patch up their differences. It is a slim chance, but if Alan could pay back what he has taken, perhaps the case would not come to court. If the old man dies, well . . . a crime is still a crime and the law will take its course."

Carol asked, "Do you hate Alan? Do you . . ."

"This is no time for hate or personal feelings, my dear. On one side there's a pathetic old gentleman who may be dying, and on the other an ambitious and greedy and ungrateful boy. But Alan is not a criminal by nature and his friends can't desert him I'm not a judge, Carol. I'm a physician and I've got to get back to my patient."

"Do you want me to go with you? Can't I help?"

"Under the circumstances—no. I'd rather you didn't. It's a matter now of waiting. I've done all I can. He may go any minute but if he gets through this, he may live for years." To Edwina he said, "Won't you stay and have dinner with Carol?"

"Certainly—if Carol would like me to stay."

Carol said, "Of course, Edwina." Alan's former wife and his fiancee . . . What an odd combination to comfort each other, to wait together while a train took Norman away forever. . . .

In the hall her father smiled at her, kissed her and said, "Don't worry. We've been through other things. We'll see this through."

"You're wonderful."

"You were wonderful to me when I needed you. I'll telephone you if there is any change."

* * *

When he left, she went quickly upstairs and called Alan's office. The phone kept ringing. . . . Then she called his apartment and after a long time his voice, tired in spite of the forced strength he put into it, came back to her.

"Who is it?"

"This is Carol, Alan." This is a girl pulled three ways—to you, to an old man and to Norman . . . "Mr. Hartley is very ill. I wanted you to know. Father has gone back to him. I know, Alan. I—Edwina is with me . . ."

"She told you . . ."

"Yes. But as a friend, your friend and mine. Please believe that."

After a short silence he said in a dull voice, "I suppose this . . ."

She would not let him say it. "Won't you come here now, Alan? Don't stay there alone. Come to dinner and . . ."

"Thanks, but I couldn't eat anything and I'd rather be alone. I don't deserve your loyalty, Carol, but I — I want it very much. Goodbye."

"I don't deserve your loyalty but I want it very much . . . . That bound her, she thought, replacing the telephone on the hook and catching a glimpse of her strained face in the wall mirror.

* * *

When she returned to the living room, Edwina looked up and smiled and that smile bound her to Edwina, too, she thought. It was as if they were very old, very dear friends giving strength and consolation one to the other. And it was an unspoken thing, this love between two girls whose lives were unhappily tangled with Alan's . . . And yet at this moment she felt closer to Edwina than she felt to any one else.

"I called Alan and asked him to come. He wouldn't."

"No. He doesn't want to see any one. He's fighting out his battle alone. I feel I should not pity him, but I do."

"I'll tell Rosie you're going to be here for dinner."

When she returned, it seemed that all the light had gone out of the room, that suddenly it was quite dark. Lowering the curtains she turned on the lamps, and the room took on a night-time intimacy. Edwina smoked constantly until dinner was announced.

* * *

They did not speak again of Alan or Norman. For escape, they spoke of the good Chippendale pieces in the dining room which Edwina admired. Carol said they had been brought from the city house. Then Edwina asked about nursing as a career and Carol, her mind seizing an outlet, spoke of her years in the hospital, the work, the pleasures and the labor and the long hours of it . . . while the clock ticked off the minutes slowly and Rosie, aware of the identity of the guest and eager not to miss a ward of her conversation, shuffled back and forth between the dining room and the kitchen more frequently than was necessary.

EDITH'S EYES opened at Miss Whitlock's command.

"We are going downstairs now?" she asked.

"Yes right away," the nurse answered, and I told myself that the expression in her eyes was less desperate than it had been when I had been in the room before. Whether the change had its roots in excitement at changing her quarters, or in relief at my assurance that Dicky was willing to see her and talk to her, I did not know but I hailed the improvement with mental relief.

"What did you tell me to do?" Edith asked childishly, and I realized that her brain was far from functioning normally.

"I told you not to sit up," Miss Whitlock reiterated patiently, "but to put your feet out of the bed."

Edith obeyed her docilely, and as Miss Whitlock took up one stocking, I took up the other. But at the first touch of those ice-cold feet, I looked in startled inquiry at the nurse, and she nodded an answer to my unspoken query. Then she took the foot she held between her palms, and began to chafe it vigorously. I followed her example, and Edith stirred impatiently.

"Don't," she said. "You hurt me."

"Oh! no, we're not," the nurse told her pleasantly. "Besides we're only going to rub a minute or two more. Then we get you downstairs, we'll put a nice electric pad to your feet. You would have had one before if I had dreamed of this. But the last time I felt them not very long ago, they were almost too warm."

She kept up her chatter as we went on rubbing. I knew with the intention of diverting Edith's attention, and in a few more seconds she nodded to me, and we put Edith's feet into warm hose and slippers, and wrapped a warm bathrobe over her night attire.

"Now!" the nurse said briskly, "just slip your arm under hers, and I'll do the same on this side. Then we can support her as she walks, and we'll get her downstairs as quickly as possible."

"Is she?—" I began, and bit back the query promptly for Katherine's presence in my household, and observation of her ways have shown me the futility of questioning a nurse's decision.

"Able to walk downstairs?" Miss Whitlock finished my query for me. "In almost any other conditions, I should say, 'No, she isn't,' but—I'm in a dilemma. We two are not able to carry her down without the risk of hurting her—we'd have to do it, of course, in case of fire or anything like that which required speed—and she doesn't wish to see anyone save you and your husband and me—and your husband isn't available. So—I really think she will be less harmed by walking than by summoning other help."

I read between the lines of her little speech, and realized that there was danger of harm coming to Edith by letting her walk downstairs in her enfeebled condition, but I also saw the reasonableness of her decision. Above everything else, Edith must not be excited, and the bringing in of any one else to aid her, would key her up, I was sure, to a danger pitch.

But I had one resource which I was sure I could use, and Edith's tremulous voice steeled my determination to avail myself of it.

"Oh! I can walk," she quavered. "Please do not bring anybody else."

I slid my arm from beneath hers, and spoke hastily to Miss Whitlock.

"Will you wait five minutes?" I said. "I think I have a solution for this."

I turned back to the woman watching me, and looked at her steadily.

"Tell me, Edith," I said quickly, "if Dicky can leave his work for five minutes or less, would you be willing to let him carry you down to your new quarters?"

ASHLAND FAIR CLOSES WITH 31,000 GATE

County Exposition Declared Most Successful In Old Timer's Memory.

ASHLAND — Last night, with the presentation of a rodeo which attracted close to an estimated 5,000 persons in its two presentations, the three-day Ashland county fair was brought to a close.

Called by James Atterholt the most successful county fair here in the "memory of some real old timers," the event attracted close to 10,000 persons on its opening day, over 9,000 the second day, and an estimated 11,000 on the final day, for a total of 31,000 people.

The program Friday climaxed the three days of showing and judging of exhibits which Atterholt said offered premiums totaling close to $12,000, was featured as Ashland County day.

In the morning was featured the auction sale of fat cattle, while the afternoon was devoted largely to a county program which called for talks by Virgil B. Moffett, county school superintendent and others.

The county band, which has been making successful appearances since its beginning only a year ago, was presented, and played a concert, prior to the racing program.

The double showing of the rodeo in the evening climaxed the fair.

Attending the couple were Mrs. Fred Stick of Cincinnati, sister of the bridegroom, and Tom Flannery, brother of the bride.

At the home of the bride's parents, a reception took place after the wedding ceremony. A buffet luncheon was served, with flowers and appointments in the bride's colors, wine, pink and white. A large wedding cake centered the table. Serving were Mrs. Bernard Flannery, Mrs. Joseph Flannery and Jane Andrews. Relatives and friends were present from Crestline, Cincinnati, Galion, Cleveland, and South America.

Later in the day, Mr. Hipp and his bride left for a wedding trip through the southern states. When they return they will live in Galion in Apartment 4 of the Colonial apartments on Harding Way East.

The bride was graduated from Galion high school and the Dickinson Secretarial school in Mansfield. She has been employed in the office of the Central Ohio Steel Products company in Galion for the past six years.

Mr. Hipp also is employed in the same office. He was graduated from Crestline high school and the Mansfield Business college.

Tygers Show Vast Improvement In Whipping Cambridge

Crestline Registers 10th Straight Win

As Cambridge Scores Lone Touchdown

Here's the pileup at the north goal as Frank Collart, Cambridge high fullback, ploughs into the Mansfield line for his team's only touchdown as the Mansfield high Tygers marked up a 25 to 7 triumph at Stadium field last night. No. 33 is Jim Doolittle. George Murray is No. 31, facing the camera, and No. 47 in the background is Dick Winbigler. No. 23 with his back to the camera is Lyne, Cambridge.

Merle Hutson's Grid Machine Scores 21-0 Victory Over Galion Team.

GALION—Fighting to retain their spectacular undefeated record, Coach Merle Hutson's Crestline high gridders registered their 10th consecutive triumph here last night by whipping Galion high, 21 to 0, under the lights at Heise park before a capacity gathering.

* * *

Crestline, which won eight games last season, drove 39 yards for the first score in the initial period. Moleno smashed over from the one-yard line. He passed to Stump for the point.

* * *

Corbin recovered a punt behind the Galion goal for the second marker in the next chapter. Fisher added the point from placement.

* * *

After an even third period, Crestline added its final score after intercepting one of Galion's desperate passes. Light caught the pass and sparked the drive from the Galion 25. He hit center from the nine for the score. Fisher's kick for the point split the uprights.

* * *

Crestline held the edge in every department against the Orangemen of the North Central Ohio league. The winners had 13 first downs while Galion collected four.

Weakened Rams Drop Tilt To New London Gridders

BOB FLOHR

THE loss of eight regulars from the Madison high school football squad during the past week as a result of a reported "theft episode" in Wooster last Saturday, proved costly to the Rams last night as they dropped a 12 to 7 contest to the New London Wildcats under the lights at Madison field before a crowd of about 1,000.

* * *

Last night's loss was the second of the season for the Rams, who last week dropped a one-sided 38 to 7 contest to the Wooster high school gridders, a class A school.

* * *

The Rams suffered another blow last night when they lost the services for the rest of the season of Bob Fletcher, a back. Fletcher suffered an attack of appendicitis, according to Coach Al Fendrick, and was removed to General hospital after the game.

It was expected they would operate on Fletcher this morning. He was removed from the tilt in the final quarter.

Madison's lone touchdown came in the closing minutes of the second half and was scored by Bob Anthony, a freshman back, to give the Rams a 7-6 lead at half time.

After the ball was brought to New London's 28-yard line on a Heichel to Poston pass, Anthony carried the ball to the 19 on a sweep, and on the next play went over. A pass, J. Fletcher to Heichel was good for the extra point.

New London's first tally came mid-way in the second quarter on a run by D. Wolfe from Madison's 14-yard stripe. Ray Wolfe failed to kick the extra point.

A Madison fumble on its own 21 set the stage in the third period for the Wildcats' second touchdown.

* * *

After D. Wolfe and Iceman in successive plays had carried the ball to Madison's two, Iceman plunged for the score. Ray Wolfe failed to sweep end for the extra point.

Butler Stops Centerburg In Opening Game

Bulldogs Break Losing Streak With 21 to 7 Win.

CENTERBURG — Coach Bob Burgett and his Butler high Bulldogs are in a happy frame of mind today.

* * *

Unable to win a grid contest last year, the Bulldogs stepped out here yesterday to hand Centerburg high a 21 to 7 beating in Butler's opening game of the season.

* * *

It marked the first time a Butler team has scored three touchdowns in a game singe Burgett began building his football machine a year ago.

Butler was held scoreless in the opening frame, but forged ahead with a touchdown in the second frame and came back to pound over two more in the final chapter.

Red Harris opened the scoring when he intercepted a Centerburg pass and ran 25 yards for the initial marker. He added the point on a plunge.

Harris, in the fourth period, climaxed an 80-yard march by knifing over from the Centerburg three into pay dirt. Jack Wilson added the point on a plunge. Walter Sawdey set the stage for the Bulldog's final touchdown in the fourth quarter by blocking and recovering a Centerburg punt on the losers' 25-yard line.

On the first play Wilson skirted right end for the score. Crunkilton added the extra point by ploughing through center.

* * *

Centerburg scored its marker after recovering a Bulldog fumble in the last minute of play. The losers marched 20 yards with Dowden taking a pass in the end zone.

* * *

Butler held the edge all the way marking up 16 first downs to the Centerburg's nine. Butler was penalized 80 yards and the losers 20. The Bulldog seconds were in the game when Centerburg scored.

Mansfield Marks Up Easy 25-7 Grid Triumph

Henke Paces Attack Against Veteran Brownie Combine at Stadium Field.

By CHARLES MARTIN, News-Journal Sports Editor.

SHOWING vast improvement over their play in the opener last week, the Mansfield high Tygers continued on their winning ways under the arcs at Stadium field last night by registering a 25 to 7 triumph over a heavy Cambridge high combine before some 3,800 fans.

Coach Paul Snyder's athletes gave a fine demonstration of timely blocking as they mowed down the veteran Cambridge outfit to allow the Tyger backs to romp into pay dirt on four occasions.

* * *

Mansfield punched over two touchdowns in the first period and that advantage was never threatened seriously for Cambridge failed to do any damage until late in the final frame.

* * *

The Tygers added touchdown No. 3 in the second quarter and wound up their scoring with a marker in the third stanza.

Cambridge, relying on its aerial attack—the only weapon it could use successfully against the stout Tyger defense—finally hit the scoring column late in the fourth chapter.

Outside of the last period the Brownies failed to give the Mansfield aggregation a battle. The Tygers held the upper hand in all but three departments.

Led by Martin Henke, who smashed into pay territory twice, the Tygers turned loose their potent attack early in the initial quarter and the way those Mansfield youngsters tore through the Cambridge line there was little doubt of the outcome.

A Cambridge fumble that was recovered by a swarm of Tygers set the stage for the first marker. Mansfield recovered the ball on the invaders' 35.

Adam Brandt and Henke lugged the pigskin to the three-yard line in five plays and Henke hit right tackle for the score. Brandt's kick for the extra point was low and the Tygers were leading 6-0.

The same two backs sparked the next drive which started from the Cambridge 42. In four plays the Tygers were on the visitors' four and Henke again hit right tackle for the marker. Henke's drop-kick for the point was low.

Midway in the second frame Henke again started a touchdown march from the Mansfield 47. Henke carried the ball to the Cambridge 38 and on the second play Joe Romano, behind perfect interference, carried the pigskin over on an end around play. Henke handed the ball to Elroy Jones and he snapped it to Romano behind the line. Henke again tried to drop kick the point, but it was low, and Mansfield was leading 18-0.

Near the end of the third chapter Cambridge opened up a passing attack in its own territory and Bill Doolittle intercepted one of Medley's heaves on the 40 and raced over unmolested for the fourth touchdown. Brandt added the point and the Tygers were ahead, 25-0.

At this point the Brownies' aerial game began functioning. Taking the ball on their own 37 the Brownies piled up five first downs in a row to reach the Mansfield six.

In two tries Frank Collart, Cambridge fullback went through center for the score. Kosokar, a lanky end, added the extra point with a spectacular drop kick. The ball soared high over the uprights.

A little later the Brownies reached the Mansfield 31, but the attack bogged down and Mansfield took a punt on its six. Doolittle, Jim Templeton and Brandt lugged the ball to the Cambridge 26 as the gun ended the game.

Mansfield saw one of its goal-ward drives bog down in the second chapter. The Tygers started from the Cambridge 47 and went to the five. Here, however, a five-yard penalty set the Mansfield team back to the 10 and Jones fumbled the ball on the next play and Cambridge recovered on the five-yard stripe.

Doolittle, who replaced Bob Lantz as the blocking halfback, turned in a nifty job, while Lantz' work in the line was a feature of the game.

Henke, who sent a punt out on the Cambridge four-yard line in the first chapter, suffered a knee injury at the beginning of the third period and Snyder today said it might keep the hard-plunging fullback on the sidelines this week.

Jim Templeton, who replaced Henke in the backfield played spectacular ball and was one of the main cogs in the Tyger attack.

Mansfield marked up 15 first downs to Cambridge's seven and picked up 293 yards from rushing while the Brownies were totaling 34.

Ol' Os' Panned for Benching Harder and Losing Series Opener

Feller Charged With Loss As Tigers Sweep First Tilt, 6 to 5.

By DALE STAFFORD

DETROIT — (AP) — The opening battle was ended but the argument raged on today as the Detroit Tigers, a full game up on their foes, squared off against the Cleveland Indians in the second part of the American league's pre-world series triple feature.

* * *

As usual the argument centered on the No. 1 man in most of Cleveland's disturbances this year — Manager Oscar Vitt — against whom 12 of the Indians rebelled last June 13.

* * *

This time Vitt's strategy was under fire as a result of the eighth inning of yesterday's contest in which Detroit scored five runs to lock up a 6 to 5 victory after appearing hopelessly defeated. Vitt was being criticized for:

(1) Removing Pitcher Mel Harder after he had allowed only four singles and one run in seven and one-third innings;

(2) Sending Bobby Feller in as the relief hurler when the young Iowan had benefited from only 24 hours rest after going all out to defeat the Washington Senators, 2 to 1, on Wednesday.

Vitt showed no surprise when informed that he was being "panned" in some quarters.

"I'd do the same thing in the same situation today," Vitt said. "Harder, who is past 30 years of age, was tiring and had lost his control."

Second-guessers pointed out that Harder had stood the Tigers on their heads and that a walk to Barney McCoskey and a single by Charley Gehringer with one man out was the sole damage that had occurred in the inning in which he was removed. A five-minute huddle involving Vitt, Harder, Catcher Frank Pytlak and Shortstop Lou Boudreau preceded Harder's departure. Capt. Hal Trosky did not participate in the discussion.

"I feel badly about losing," Vitt added, "but there are two games left in the series and we aren't out of it yet by a long shot."

Feller was losing pitcher for the fourth time this season against the Tigers.

Hank Greenberg, who is batting .471 against Feller for the year, greeted Bobby with a sizzling line single to center and Rudy York and Frank Higgins singled to right to send him to the showers. Joe Dobson came in and yielded two singles and a walk before finally retiring the side.

The Indians accumulated the staggering total of 15 hits—11 of them off Louis (Buck) Newsom—as compared to Detroit's nine. Even more jittery than when they lost three straight games here earlier in the month, the Tribesmen committed four errors.

* * *

The Tigers sought to make it two straight and increase their league lead to two full games today by pitching Lynwood Rowe, their comeback hero.

* * *

Rowe, who was sent to the minors with an ailing arm two years ago, has 15 victories and three defeats to his credit. Al Milnar, who will start for Cleveland, boasts a record of 16 wins and nine losses.

Don't put oil or vaseline on tight fitting ferrules. These substances cause an air seal which makes them fit even tighter. Use graphite . . . the best and most convenient source is a very soft lead pencil, and the ferrules will slip easily. Be sure that the ferrules are free from dust.

Veteran woodsmen know that there is a big difference in the wood you burn for the campfire. For a quick, hot fire use birch or maple. For a long-burning fire use oak, hard maple, hickory or ash. Rock elm is another good, lasting fire. Cedar is not so good as it burns too quickly, and is somewhat explosive, throwing sparks.

The herring gulls of the north Atlantic coast select definite areas of about 100 square yards for each pair. This sand "belongs" to the pair, and trespassers are first vigorously warned, then attacked.

Probably only about a half dozen scientists have ever seen the rarest American creature a blind cave salamandar, found only in one Texas cave. It breathes through gills, its eyes are wholly covered by skin.

Shelby Halts Willard Club

Bill Query's Whippets Mark Up 14-0 Victory.

SHELBY—The Query brothers, Bill and Dave, Ohio's only twin-brother coaches, staged their annual football act for the benefit of Shelby and Willard fans here under the floodlights last night with the decision going to brother Bill.

* * *

Before a crowd of some 3,500 fans, Bill's Shelby high school Whippets defeated his brother's Willard high school eleven 14 to 0, to win their second consecutive football game this season.

* * *

Both teams before last night had won one game this season. In past contests between the two coaches neither Bill nor Dave have been able to score an edge, each having been defeated once and tied twice.

Shelby scored twice in the second quarter. Daugherty went over for Shelby's first score after a pass, Laubie to Whitney brought the ball to the 26-yard line. Daugherty placekicked the extra point.

Laubie carried the ball over from the seven-yard stripe for the second last score just before the half ended. Daugherty again placekicked the extra point.

Three of the four top-notch teams the Mansfield high Tygers face in future grid games came through with victories last night. Elyria, which plays at Stadium field next Friday night, beat Sandusky, 13 to 6, while Massillon marked up its 25th win by smothering Weirton, W. Va., 47 to 0, and Canton McKinley topped Akron South, 57 to 12. New Philadelphia, usually a power in high school circles, dropped its second straight game by taking a 26 to 13 beating from Zanesville.

ASHLAND HIGH GRIDDERS IN SCORELESS BATTLE

Bellville Bluejays Swamp Granville High Club, 39-0

BELLVILLE — Running wild in the second period, the Bellville high Bluejays scored at ease to chalk up their second win of the season by swamping Granville, 39 to 0, at Bellville yesterday afternoon.

* * *

Playing the second contest under their new coach, L. C. Lindsey, the Bluejays piled up a 12-0 lead in the first half, coming back in the second half to continue their scoring spree by adding 14 points in the third period and 13 more in the final.

* * *

The second half scoring spree was started at the opening of the third period when Watkins recovered a Granville fumble in midfield, which started the Bluejays on the march.

* * *

Keiser, Pearl and Fisher, a sub back, crossed the goal line for Bellville's other touchdowns. Keiser added his toe work to the Bellville causes by place kicking three extra points.

Several Granville fumbles set up scoring opportunities which the Bluejays took advantage of.

BANDITS SORRY

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(U.P.)—Two youthful bandits held up a Birmingham filling station and got $10.20. "Sure sorry we have to do this to you," they apologized to the attendant as they made their getaway.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Kelley Gun club was merely having trouble with trespassers, nothing more. So there's nothing unusual about the sign that hangs under the stars and stripes on the flagpole—"private, keep off."

STOCKS MIXED DURING EARLY MART TRADING

High Rate of Department Store Spending Encouraging; Outlook Optimistic.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Slightly mixed tendencies were displayed by leading stocks in today's early market trading.

Encouraging marketwise was the federal reserve board's summary disclosing a high rate of spending in department stores throughout the country was being well maintained.

The board's survey placed store sales for the week ended Sept. 14 at 10 per cent above the comparable period last year. In the preceding week the year-to-year increase was 11 per cent.

Further attention was given farm equipment company stocks in the wake of the boosted dividend declared by Deere & Co. Some observers estimated sales in the agricultural machinery field were currently running between 20 and 25 per cent ahead of 1939. The outlook for coming months was viewed as highly optimistic.

Germans Report Powerful Blows

BERLIN —(AP)— Powerful German overnight blows at London were reported today despite adverse weather conditions, while two waves of British bombers were said to have been turned back from counter-thrusts far short of Berlin.

Nazi bomber pilots claimed heavy attacks on important rail lines west of the big bend of the Thames in "thick" weather which they said gave them more trouble than did the British defense.

The official German news agency, DNB, said Britain's counter raids were aimed at Berlin, one wave approaching Hamburg via the German bight and the second piercing western Germany as far as Hanover.

Both flights, DNB said, were stopped by "surprise" German anti aircraft barrages, then pursued by fighter planes.

German sources said 12 British planes were destroyed in action over England while only one Nazi machine was missing.

Turkish Girls In Air Defense

BUDAPEST —(INS)— Adopting drastic military precautions, the Turkish government today withdrew all Turkish ships from the Mediterranean sea, it was reported in Budapest today.

This action was taken, these advices said, as a result of Italy's refusal to release a Turkish merchant vessel seized 10 days ago.

The Ankara government decreed that all Turkish girls from 18 to 24 must enroll in air raid precaution battalions. They also will be trained in the use of rifles and machine guns.

The population of Istanbul arose this morning to find thousands of posters pasted up in the streets, giving detailed instructions on how to behave in the event of air raids.

Japan Modifies French Demands

SHANGHAI —(INS)— Modification of stringent Japanese demands today was reported to have relieved the French-Japanese crisis over Indo-China and led to renewal of negotiations over military and naval concessions in the French far eastern colony.

(An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Hong Kong said it was reported reliably that the Japanese had withdrawn their previous 72-hour ultimatum to the Indo-Chinese government.)

Advices reaching Shanghai from Hanoi quoted a French announcement as stating that the French-Japanese negotiations are being renewed in a "favorable atmosphere." In addition to permission to send troops across Indo-China, it is understood, the Japanese seek the right to establish air and naval bases on Indo-China territory.

French officials were understood to have expressed the private opinion that an agreement will be reached speedily.

Common Pleas Judge John McCabe adjourned until Tuesday hearing in the suit to enjoin the Lane Drug company from selling at less than 16 cents.

The case resolved a question whether federal and state laws enable the Ohio Fair trade committee tobacco division, a voluntary association of dealers, to establish a uniform price scale.
